2017 NCAA DIVISION I MEN'S & WOMEN'S CROSS COUNTRY CHAMPIONSHIPS

Saturday, November 18, 2017

Louisville, Ky. | E.P. "Tom" Sawyer State Park

RACE SCHEDULE

Women's 6K race: 10:45 a.m. ET/7:45 a.m. PT

Men's 10K race: 11:45 a.m. ET/8:45 a.m. PT

LIVE COVERAGE

Live stream: NCAA.com and flotrack.com

Live results: via Record Timing at NCAA.com

COURSE DESCRIPTION

This is the third time in NCAA history that the Division I cross country championships will take place in the state of Kentucky (previous times: 2012 and 2015 in Louisville). It is the 80th annual men's competition and the 38th annual women's competition. The 2017 championships will feature slightly modified 10K and 6K courses. The course enhancements will improve overall athlete flow/movement on the course, increase spectator viewpoints for both championship races, and improve camera placement and increase visibility for the live stream.

COURSE RECORDS

Women's 6K

19:42.2 - Cally Macumber, Kentucky
2012 NCAA Championships

Men's 10K

29:36.1 - Jacob Korir, Eastern Kentucky
2007 NCAA Southeast Regional

The Pac-12 Conference enters the first NCAA Championship of 2017-18 with a record 501 team national titles across its membership, becoming the first and only league to reach 500 in the spring of 2017.

NCAA MEN'S CHAMPIONSHIP - PAC-12 PREVIEW

PAC-12 TEAM AUTOMATIC QUALIFIERS

Washington - NCAA West Regional Runners-up

PAC-12 TEAM AT-LARGE QUALIFIERS (Regional finish)

Colorado (3rd), Oregon (4th), Stanford (3rd), UCLA (5th), Washington State (7th)

PAC-12 INDIVIDUAL QUALIFIERS

Trent Brendel, California (13th at West Regional)

Garrett Corcoran, California (15th at West Regional)

The Pac-12 will have the most men's teams in the NCAA Cross Country Championships field for the fourth consecutive year with six teams aiming to capture the league's 17th men's team national title in the sport.

No. 5 nationally ranked COLORADO, the last Pac-12 member to capture the NCAA crown in 2014, and No. 6 STANFORD, this year's Pac-12 champions, appear to be the most likely to unseat defending national champion and top-ranked Northern Arizona. CU is making its national-best 26th consecutive trip to NAAs, while Stanford is close behind with its 24th straight appearance.

Also in the mix is No. 12 WASHINGTON, which finished runner-up at last week's NCAA West Regional and was the lone Conference team to secure an automatic bid to Louisville. Five of the 13 available at-large berths were awarded to the Pac-12.

NCAA WOMEN'S CHAMPIONSHIP - PAC-12 PREVIEW

PAC-12 TEAM AUTOMATIC QUALIFIERS

Colorado - NCAA Mountain Regional Champions

Stanford - NCAA West Regional Runners-up

PAC-12 TEAM AT-LARGE QUALIFIERS (Regional finish)

California (5th), Oregon (3rd), Washington (6th)

PAC-12 INDIVIDUAL QUALIFIERS

Grayson Murphy, Utah (2nd at Mountain Regional)

Claire Green, Arizona (15th at West Regional)

Vallery Korir, Washington State (19th at West Regional)

No. 1 nationally ranked COLORADO headlines the Pac-12's pack of five women's teams entered to compete for the NCAA Cross Country Championship this weekend. It marks the seventh consecutive year that at least five women's teams from the Conference reached the national title race, the longest such streak in the country.

The Buffaloes have been dominant this season - winning all but one race entered including the Pac-12 and NCAA West Regional titles - but expect resistance from region rival New Mexico and San Francisco along with league foes No. 4 STANFORD and defending national champion No. 7 OREGON. CU's lone defeat this season came to Oregon at the Pre-Nationals meet in Louisville on Oct. 14.

MEN'S PREVIEW

Rounding out the Pac-12 in the 31-team field are No. 14 OREGON (sixth consecutive appearance), No. 16 UCLA (fourth consecutive) and No. 27 WASHINGTON STATE (third consecutive).

The Buffaloes and Cardinal will be anchored by a pair of returning All-Americans and individual race favorites in sophomore Joe Klecker (2016) and junior Grant Fisher (2015, 2016). Fisher, the reigning NCAA outdoor 5,000-meter champ, outkicked Klecker on the final straightaway to win the Pac-12 individual title and lead Stanford to a team crown over six-time defending champion CU on Oct. 27. Klecker responded with an individual win at the NCAA Mountain Regional last Friday.

Four other NCAA All-Americans return from the Pac-12 in Colorado's John Dressel (2015, 2016), Stanford's Sam Wharton (2014) Washington's Colby Gilbert (2015), Washington State's Michael Williams (2016).

Stanford's Steven Fahy, who finished third at both the Pac-12 and NCAA West Regional championships, could also factor into the individual title race, as well as fellow All-Pac-12 performers Robert Brandt (UCLA), Alex Ostberg (Stanford) and Cooper Teare (Oregon), the league's Freshman of the Year.

WOMEN'S PREVIEW

Oregon entered last year's NCAA Championship ranked No. 12, but pulled off a shocking win over Michigan in the closest finish in event history. The Ducks edged the Wolverines by a single point, 125-126, based on an individual finish that was one-tenth of a second better. The title jumpstarted Oregon to what eventually became the first triple crown - cross country, indoor & outdoor track & field national titles - in NCAA history.

The Ducks' cross country title was the 12th all-time for the Pac-12 membership, which is tied for the most of any conference along with the Big East.

Along with the league's three top-10 programs, No. 22 WASHINGTON and No. 23 CALIFORNIA will race in the 31-team field. The Huskies make their 11th consecutive appearance, while the Golden Bears are making their first since 2011.

The Pac-12 will bring a loaded list for the women's individual race with 12 past NCAA All-Americans in the field:

Christina Aragon, Stanford (2016)
Kaitlyn Benner, Colorado (2015, 2016)
Mackenzie Caldwell, Colorado (2016)
Alli Cash, Oregon (2015, 2016)
Elise Cranny, Stanford (2014)
Vanessa Fraser, Stanford (2015)
Sage Hurta, Colorado (2016)
Dani Jones, Colorado (2016)
Bethan Knights, California (2014)
Amy-Eloise Neale, Washington (2016)
Fiona O'Keeffe, Stanford (2016)
Katie Rainsberger, Oregon (2016)

Lilli Burdon (Oregon), Grayson Murphy (Utah) and Pac-12 Freshman of the Year Brie Oakley (California) should figure into individual contention as well.

PAC-12 CROSS COUNTRY - CONFERENCE OF CHAMPIONS

The Pac-12 is the winningest conference in NCAA Cross Country history, as current league members boast:

- A national-best 28 NCAA Cross Country team titles (16 men, second-best among conferences & 12 women, tied for most among conferences)
- A national-best 28 NCAA Cross Country individual titles (25 men, most of any conference/3 women)
- 34 NCAA Cross Country runner-up team finishes (19 men/15 women)

Since expanding to the Pac-12 in 2011, the league has produced the most competitive and successful NCAA teams and individuals in the country, highlighted by:

MEN'S CROSS COUNTRY

- 2 NCAA men's team national champions, the most of any conference.
- 11 Top 5 men's team finishes at NCAA Championship, the most of any conference. The ACC and Big Sky are second with four apiece.
- 4 NCAA men's individual national champions, the most of any conference.
- 56 men's All-Americans, the most of any conference. The ACC is second with 30.
- The most men's All-Americans each year, highlighted by 15 in 2014, 12 in 2015 and nine in 2016.
- 34 men's NCAA Championship participant teams, the most of any conference.
- The most men's NCAA Championship participant teams in 2014 (five), 2015 (league-record seven), 2016 (six) and 2017 (six).

WOMEN'S CROSS COUNTRY

- 2 NCAA women's team national champions, tied with the Big East for the most of any conference.
- 10 Top 5 women's team finishes at NCAA Championship, the most of any conference.
- 50 women's All-Americans, the most of any conference. The ACC is second with 28.
- 38 women's NCAA Championship participant teams, the most of any conference.
- Seven consecutive years with at least five women's NCAA Championship participant teams, the only conference in the nation with such a streak.
- The most women's NCAA Championship participant teams in four of last seven years: 2011 (seven), 2012 (five), 2015 (five) and 2016 (six).

2017 PAC-12 CHAMPIONSHIPS REVIEW

SPRINGFIELD, Ore. - Junior individual champion Dani Jones led the No. 3 COLORADO women to their third consecutive team title, while junior Grant Fisher powered the No. 6 STANFORD men past six-time defending champion CU in front of 2,175 fans at the 2017 Pac-12 Cross Country Championships at Springfield Golf Club on Friday, Oct. 27.

For the first time in event history, the 2017 Championships were broadcast and streamed live on Pac-12 Networks.

In the six-kilometer women's race, Jones (18:57.3) crossed just ahead of OREGON's Katie Rainsberger (18:58.5) and last year's champion Amy-Eloise Neale (18:58.7) of WASHINGTON to become the first Buffaloes' runner to capture the Pac-12 individual title. The Buffs placed two others in the top 10 – senior Kaitlyn Benner in eighth and sophomore Sage Hurta in ninth - and all five scorers inside the top 20 to cruise to the three-peat with 53 points.

Colorado, which now owns fourth women's team titles since joining the Pac-12 in 2011, is the first team to capture three straight Conference women's titles since Stanford completed its streak of 12 in 2007.

Host and No. 1 ranked OREGON and No. 14 Stanford tied at 71 points with the Ducks claiming runner-up honors based on better placement among their top-three finishers. No. 13 WASHINGTON came in fourth (128 points), No. 28 CALIFORNIA took fifth (132) and No. 27 UTAH rounded out the top half in sixth (146).

Fisher (23:44.9) unleashed a furious finishing kick to beat Colorado's Joe Klecker (23:48.0) to the tape in the eight-kilometer men's race to become the eighth Cardinal individual champion in the event's 49-year history, the first since Elliott Heath in 2010.

Junior Steven Fahy and sophomore Alex Ostberg followed Fisher in third and fourth place, respectively, and the Cardinal placed all its scorers inside the top 18 to post 41 points and end No. 5 ranked Colorado's stranglehold atop the Pac-12. Stanford now owns 13 men's team titles all-time, second only to Oregon's 16.

CU came in second with 47 points, paced by Klecker's runner-up showing and top-10 finishes from junior Ryan Forsyth and freshman Eduardo Herrera. No. 14 UCLA continued its strong campaign with a third-place standing (103 points), edging No. 8 Oregon (109). No. 21 WASHINGTON (114) edged No. 20 ranked rival WASHINGTON STATE (138) in the battle for fifth.
