The events will also be available to stream live for authenticated subscribers via the Pac-12 Now app and Pac-12.com. On the call will be Jim Watson, Dwight Stones and Lewis Johnson.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

Springfield Golf Club – 90333 Sunderman Rd., Springfield, OR 97478 - is the competition site for the 2017 Pac-12 Cross Country Championships. One of Oregon's premier golf courses, student-athletes will race entirely on grass and mostly on fairways. The course consists of two relatively flat loops - an outer loop and a finish loop. The outer loop is approximately 2,320 meters in length, and the finishing loop is approximately 1,350 meters in length.

49TH ANNUAL PAC-12 MEN'S CHAMPIONSHIP

A year after history was made on the individual front, COLORADO will seek to make history from a team perspective at the 2017 Pac-12 Men's Cross Country Championships.

The CU men have won every Conference team title since joining the Pac-12 in 2011, a streak of six consecutive crowns. Another triumph in 2017 will break the previous league-record streak of six currently shared by the Buffaloes (2011-16) and STANFORD (2000-05).

However, a quintet of nationally ranked teams will be part of the eight-team pack seeking to spoil No. 5 Colorado's run at history. No. 6 Stanford and No. 8 OREGON are the lead candidates to challenge CU - the Buffaloes (six), Cardinal (eight) and Ducks (three) have combined to win all 17 Pac-12 men's team championships in the new millenium. The last team to unseat that trio was ARIZONA in 1999.

No. 14 UCLA, No. 20 WASHINGTON STATE and No. 21 WASHINGTON have all surged late in the season - climbing a combined 25 spots (UCLA +6, WSU +9, WASH +10) in the latest USTFCCCA national poll - and appear primed to contend.

This marks just the third time Oregon has hosted the Pac-12 Championships, doing so in 1998 (Eugene) and 2008 (Springfield). The Ducks used the home-course advantage to capture the 2008 men's team title, their most recent Pac-12 crown.

32ND ANNUAL PAC-12 WOMEN'S CHAMPIONSHIP

The Pac-12 has had the nation's No. 1 ranked women's team for the last nine USTFCCCA polls, including all six polls so far in the 2017 season. That recent battle for national supremacy has always featured the same two teams - COLORADO and OREGON.

Colorado brought the No. 1 ranking into the 2016 Pac-12 Championship and backed up the billing by posting a 41-point victory en route to their second straight Conference crown. The Buffaloes also owned the top spot through the first five polls this fall, and should they win a third consecutive crown at the 2017 Pac-12 Championships they would be the first to three-peat since STANFORD completed its stretch of 12 straight championships from 1996-2007.

Oregon, last year's NCAA national champion, took over the role of Pac-12 favorite last week as the Ducks assumed the nation's No. 1 ranking following a 63-91 victory over runner-up and now No. 3 ranked Colorado at the Pre-Nationals meet. Oregon will now look to accomplish what CU did a season ago - back up its billing as the country's No. 1 team at the Conference championship meet.

The Ducks will have home-course advantage on the Springfield Golf Club circuit, where they cruised to a 33-point victory in the Bill Dellinger Invitational in late September, paced by Katie Rainsberger's course-record shattering effort.

However, history has shown that playing host rarely equates to a team title. Only five times in Conference history has the host won the women's team title - with all five being won by Stanford (1993-94, 1996-97, 2006).

MEN'S PREVIEW

The host school has won the men's team title five times, including Oregon's 2008 triumph. Stanford accomplished the feat in 1985, 1996 and 1997, while Colorado was the last to do so in 2013.

On the individual side, the Pac-12 Championships will have a new men's champion for the first time since 2013 as the legendary Edward Cheserek capped his career with a fourth consecutive Pac-12 crown last fall, joining Arizona alumna Amy Skieresz as the only four-time individual champions in event history.

Seven past NCAA All-Americans are entered for the quest to assume Cheserek's vacant throne - Colorado's John Dressel (2015) and Joe Klecker (2016), Oregon's Matthew Maton (2016), Stanford's Grant Fisher (2015-16) and Sam Wharton (2014), Washington's Colby Gilbert (2015) and Washington State's Michael Williams (2016).

CU's Ryan Forsyth and Zach Perrin, Oregon's Travis Neuman and UCLA's Collin Burke also look to be in the mix as past Pac-12 All-Conference performers in this year's race. UCLA transfer Robert Brandt, who raced in the Pac-12 Championships the past two seasons at Cal, has a pair of top-10 finishes at major national races this fall and should also contend at the front.

WOMEN'S PREVIEW

In the race's history, only five schools have laid claim to the Pac-12 crown with Stanford winning 15 times, Oregon nine times, Colorado and Washington three times, and ARIZONA once.

Last year's individual title was one of the closest in Conference history, with No. 13 ranked WASHINGTON's Amy-Eloise Neale edging CU's Erin Clark by four-tenths of a second.

Neale is among 13 former NCAA All-Americans entered to compete for the Pac-12 individual crown - No. 28 CALIFORNIA's Bethan Knights (2014), Colorado's Kaitlyn Benner (2016), Mackenzie Caldwell (2016), Sage Hurta (2016) and Dani Jones (2016); Oregon's Alli Cash (2015) and Katie Rainsberger (2016); No. 14 Stanford's Christina Aragon (2016), Elise Cranny (2014), Vanessa Fraser (2015) and Fiona O'Keeffe (2016); and No. 27 UTAH's Grayson Murphy (2016).

Joining that group are past Pac-12 All-Conference performers in ARIZONA's Addi Zerrenner (2016), California's Marissa Williams (2015), Colorado's Makena Morley (2016) and Melanie Nun (2013 & 2015), and Utah's Hannah McInturff (2015). Oregon's Lilli Burdon has posted a pair of top-10 finishes this fall and should also vie for the front.

PAC-12 CROSS COUNTRY - CONFERENCE OF CHAMPIONS

The Pac-12 is the winningest conference in NCAA Cross Country history, as current league members boast:

- A national-best 28 NCAA Cross Country team titles (16 men, second-best among conferences & 12 women, tied for most among conferences)
- A national-best 28 NCAA Cross Country individual titles (25 men, most of any conference/3 women)
- 34 NCAA Cross Country runner-up team finishes (19 men/15 women)

Since expanding to the Pac-12 in 2011, the league has produced the most competitive and successful NCAA teams and individuals in the country, highlighted by:

MEN'S CROSS COUNTRY

- 2 NCAA men's team national champions, the most of any conference.
- 11 Top 5 men's team finishes at NCAA Championship, the most of any conference. The ACC and Big Sky are second with four apiece.
- 4 NCAA men's individual national champions, the most of any conference.
- 56 men's All-Americans, the most of any conference. The ACC is second with 30.
- The most men's All-Americans each year, highlighted by 15 in 2014, 12 in 2015 and nine in 2016.
- 28 men's NCAA Championship participant teams, second-most of any conference behind only the ACC's 29.
- The most men's NCAA Championship participant teams in 2014 (five), 2015 (league-record seven) and 2016 (six).

WOMEN'S CROSS COUNTRY

- 2 NCAA women's team national champions, tied with the Big East for the most of any conference.
- 10 Top 5 women's team finishes at NCAA Championship, the most of any conference.
- 50 women's All-Americans, the most of any conference. The ACC is second with 28.
- 33 women's NCAA Championship participant teams, the most of any conference.
- Six consecutive years with at least five women's NCAA Championship participant teams, the only conference in the nation with such a streak.
- The most women's NCAA Championship participant teams in four of last six years: 2011 (seven), 2012 (five), 2015 (five) and 2016 (six).

2016 PAC-12 CHAMPIONSHIPS REVIEW

TUCSON, Ariz. - OREGON senior Edward Cheserek made history as the first four-time men's individual champion in Conference history and COLORADO swept the men's and women's team titles for the second consecutive year to highlight the 2016 Pac-12 Cross Country Championships hosted by ARIZONA at Randolph North Golf Course.

Along with the team and men's individual titles, WASHINGTON's Amy-Eloise Neale captured the women's 6,000-meter individual crown in 20:22.9, out kicking COLORADO's Erin Clark and Dani Jones to the finish by just 0.4 and 1.5 seconds, respectively.

Cheserek passed distance legends and three-time league men's champs Steve Prefontaine (OREGON, 1970-71 & 1973) and Henry Rono (WASHINGTON STATE, 1976 & 1978-79) with his four-peat, joining ARIZONA alumna Amy Skieresz (1995-98) as the Conference's only four-time individual cross country champions. He will now set his sights on next month's NCAA Championships in Terre Haute, Ind., where he can also become the only four-time national champion in the sport.

Cheserek broke free midway through the 8,000-meter race and coasted to a 14-second victory in 23:58.9, besting runner-up Grant Fisher (24:13.5) from STANFORD.

The No. 7 COLORADO men won the team title for the sixth consecutive year – every year since joining the Pac-12 in 2011 – to match the Conference record set by STANFORD from 2000-05.

Led by top-10 showings from Ben Saarel (third), Zach Perrin (fourth), John Dressel (sixth) and Ryan Forsyth (ninth), the Buffaloes totaled 41 points to narrowly defeat the No. 2 nationally ranked Cardinal (47).

Paced by Clark, Jones and top-10 finishes by Kaitlyn Benner (fourth) and Makena Morley (ninth), the No. 1 nationally ranked COLORADO women amassed 33 points to coast to their second straight Pac-12 women's team crown. The Buffaloes, who were cheered on by alumna and 2016 Rio Olympics 1,500-meter bronze medalist Jenny Simpson, are the first repeat Conference champion since WASHINGTON accomplished the feat in 2008 and 2009.

It marked the third time COLORADO swept the men's and women's team titles (2011, 2015-16) since joining the league in 2011.
